MODULE AIMS

Doing and writing up research in primary and pre-primary teacher education.

This course is designed for those students who intend to carry out research in the field of education, write seminar papers or their dissertation in English. The topics of the course cover the basics of academic writing, such as paragraph writing, features of formal style, the structure of a thesis, writing a literature review, in-text and after-text citations, direct and indirect quotations and avoiding plagiarism. Basic research skills and techniques are also discussed in the course: how to plan a research, narrowing the topic, basic research approaches, the concept of triangulation and the most essential information about research tools, such as interviews, questionnaires and observations.
